

Welcome to Sara Duresi's world of Fiction!

My real eyes...

saraduresi @ hotmail.com	~~~~~ COMING SOON ~~~~~	saraduresi @ hotmail.com
After over one year of silence, I am finally back with new stories! I have just completed "Once in a Blue Moon". I am reviewing it for removing <typos> and mistakes. I should be able to post it on Asstr around June/July 2007. This is not a real sex story, but the story of sex, seen with different eyes. That is, my bio, what it means being transgender, and all links to websites to discover more about the subject. People new to TG issues should read it, since this is not fiction but reality! Tg people may find some useful tips and also learn from my mistakes. About new fiction stories: I have already the "draft copy" of Sheila's first case. Sheila is a tg-detective involved in a case of missing girls. Try to guess what would be happening to the poor missing girls... This should be ready to be posted on asstr during the summer or fall 2007. In case I get some good feedback from you on this, I may post other cases involving Sheila in the future.		Once in a blue moon...
The complete list of my stories posted on ASSTR begins on page 2 of this document.

Dear Friend,

Welcome to my world of fiction.

I decided to begin writing erotic stories during the summer of 2004. Being transgender, most of my stories are focused on TG heroines, but I am open to all kind of fiction erotica. Therefore, in my stories there may be love, romance and sex between all kind of people, transgender or not.

Being an "average" next door girl, I do not usually put into practice everything I write about in my stories but writing them has helped me a lot to face my status and live with it. Most people do not understand who we actually are and I am always puzzled when in a chat room I am asked questions like:

"How long have you been sick?" or "When have you decided to become transgender?"

When I get questions like that I realize that the average person does not know very much about us and this is probably the biggest of our problems in life. Being transgender just comes with personality and, in spite of what people think, once we manage to face reality and accept ourselves in this non-accepting world... being transgender is a wonderful thing! I am so glad to have been born like this!

As concerns myself, my name as a writer is Sara Duresi, or just "Sara" for my best friends. Unfortunately I live my social life as a male, but it makes it much easier. I am successful in business and I feel that most of my success is due to Sara, my inner "alter ego". There is a group of friends, both male and female, who knows Sara and loves her.

If you want to know more about myself and about the transgender world, please read "Once in a blue moon".

This will describe briefly my life, the difficulties of being transgender and there are tips to learn more, either to satisfy your curiosity about transgender people, or because you need to learn more about yourself as a transgender person. For people who are confused, I confirm that being Sara for me is just a PLUS! So, don't be afraid about this. For all the others, I just thank them for being understanding.

Thanks for reading this. From next page you are going to find an index of all my stories listed in issuing order.

I appreciate any comment you may have, good or bad. Thank you in advance for writing me your point of view.

Sincerely

Sara Duresi
